FORT CHARLOTTE RELICS.

The relics of Fort Charlot, where M. Guerin held forth in defiance of the police authorities during the Dreyfus trial, should not have been sold at auction to a wildly enthusiastic concourse of Frenchmen eager to apostrophize the man who displayed scurrilous placards and cut other capers to further inflame the minds of Parisians already on the verge of delirium with excitement.

The time has come for France to regain her mental equilibrium and to grow from mingled pity and condescension into a healthy condition. It will encourage other Frenchmen, who mistake M. Guerin's notoriety for lasting fame, to repeat his curious performance the first time occasion offers.

A JUSTIFIED APPEAL.

In sending a special committee before the Police Board to urge police cooperation in the movement to suppress the winemore evil in St. Louis, the Anti-Winemore Crusade Association appeals to the only body which can insure the success of that movement.

It is the duty of the Police Board to do everything in its power to close all objectionable winemores. The people, from whose pockets comes the money to defray the cost of the increased police force, have a right to demand the faithful performance of this duty. It will be good to see the Police Board take the lead in the movement now under way.

The Anti-Winemore Crusade Association has furnished to the Police Board a list of saloons and winemores which, it claims, come within the association's interpretation of the law demanding the closing of such places. It is incumbent upon the Police Board to take prompt action upon this list. If the resorts named are objectionable, the law against them should be enforced.

The people will hope to see this action taken. Political or other considerations should not prevail to keep the winemore open. They are a constant and active menace to morality, the respect of criminals and delinquents. Public sentiment calls for their suppression. The movement for their suppression is now up to the Police Board.

NOW FOR DIRECT WORK.

Speaker Henderson has named a strong special committee for the consideration of all matters connected with House legislation for the St. Louis World's Fair, and the way is now open for effective effort toward the passage of the necessary World's Fair bill by Congress.

Governor Francis, leading the World's Fair movement, points out that the next step to be taken is the fixing of a date upon which the Congressional committee will listen to arguments in favor of the bill. It will be the purpose of these arguments to bring about speedy and favorable action on the measure.

There is exceptional promise of success in the fact that the delegation to appear before the Congressional committee will not be limited in membership to St. Louis or Missouri, but will comprise representatives of all sections of the Louisiana Purchase. In this manner will be most truly emphasized the fact of the broad scope of the Louisiana Purchase Centennial Celebration and the widespread demand that it be made an international exposition of the first class.

From this time forward there is little prospect of delay in the progress of the great movement. Energy, enterprise and intelligent direction promise the speedy concrete materialization of World's Fair work. It is in order for every friend of the undertaking to labor in its behalf with undiminished enthusiasm and confidence.

THE AMERICAN WEST.

It was inevitable that the course of the administration party on the Puerto Rican tariff issue should have greatly weakened Republicanism's hold on the Middle West and to a very serious extent lessened Mr. McKinley's chances for re-election to the Presidency.

The outlying wilderness of the President's party to violate the Constitution by levying a tariff tax on Puerto Rico's trade with the rest of the country has justly alarmed the Western people. They plainly see the danger of such a spirit. They know that the attempt to pass the Puerto Rican tariff bill is due to the urging of certain protected interests. They remember that the President himself, in his December message to Congress, proclaimed the right of the Puerto Ricans to free trade. They now see the President attempt to maintain that position in defiance of the dictation of the tariff trusts.

The development of sudden revolt in Indiana was the first marked indication of Western condemnation of the President's course. Since then, it has been by ex-President Harrison and revealed a most serious disaffection within the Republican party. The leaders of the Republican party have no way to grind at the administration's expense. They simply discern the unhappy trend of an imperialist clique toward policies that constitute a distinct repudiation of the southern American principles.

It is the recognition of this fact which accounts for the administration's sudden and great loss of influence throughout the West. The spirit manifested in Indiana has its counterpart in Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. It is even asserted that Ohio would be a most serious disaffection within the Republican party. The leaders of the Republican party have no way to grind at the administration's expense. They simply discern the unhappy trend of an imperialist clique toward policies that constitute a distinct repudiation of the southern American principles.
